February 13th – March 4th

Atelier 14, Al Khayat Avenue

To understand society and history, one must look at art and, most importantly, listen to artists. Because Art allows us to examine what it means to be human, it voices and expresses the genuine truth away from the media.

Amid a region where many countries face instability, The artists and curators of this exhibition come together to share their genuine sentiments reflecting common feelings such as Melancholy, Nostalgia and mostly love for their homeland.

Together, Syrian, and Lebanese artists bring out new sets of complex questions, navigating topics we from the region can all resonate with, such as identity and humanity, yet articulated differently through their unique and creative means and approaches while bringing fresh perspectives.

But Art also has the power to unite us all. It has the power to bring people and ideas together.

The power of synergy highlights the importance and power of collaborations and alliances, especially during this time when people are more vulnerable to division due to the ongoing turmoil in the neighboring countries.

Because the magic of working together and uniting can lead to meaningful associations that open worlds of possibilities and wonders. Synergy is particularly powerful in pushing opposing forces that hinder people from growing.

This group show brings together artists Ismail, Rifai, Bassam Kyrillos, Mohannad Orabi, Besher Kouchaji, Suzi Nassif, Elias Ayoub, and Jonas Al Sayed under one exhibition to create this symbolic and meaningful show.

Yes, this exhibition calls for people in the region to opt for an interdependence mentality. A mentality of "together we do," "together we achieve," and "together we grow and grow much stronger."

Curated by Line Kouwatli in collaboration with Suzi Nassif and Revalue agency.
